Humanistic Management Journal
Editor-in-Chief: M. Pirson

- A venue for multiple academic disciplines and inter/trans-disciplinary work that focuses on understanding and enhancing the protection of human dignity and the promotion of well-being in organizing processes.
- A venue for researchers, practitioners, and policy makers interested in a life-conducive economic system.
- Follows the trend in humanistic management toward social entrepreneurship and cooperative capitalism

As social entrepreneurship, for-benefit businesses, and conscious, regenerative, and cooperative capitalism gain visibility, this is a forum for researchers, practitioners, and policy makers interested in a life-conducive economic system for which humanistic management is the underpinning.
